Introducing our YE2027 IBOV fair value at 200k points

We are introducing our base case YE2027 Ibovespa fair value at 200k points

Our base case fair value for the Ibovespa is calculated as an average of four methodologies: 1) a DCF model, which currently assumes a WACC of 13.6%. 2) a target P/E model, which assumes a P/E multiple of 9.0x, below the historical average of 11x. 3) a target EV/EBITDA of 5.0x, below the historical average of 6.5x, and 4) a bottom-up approach, using the target price of XP analysts for each constituent of the index, with a 10% haircut, as most targets were set before the election runoff.

On a Bull case scenario, we assume real yields to recede back to 6.0%, and multiples to re-rate to 11x fwd. P/E and 5.5x EV/EBITDA, as well as a 20% higher bottom-up target. In this case, we see a fair value of 240k points (+43% upside).

On a Bear Case scenario, we assume EBITDA 10% lower in our DCF, real yields to increase to 8.5%, and multiples to de-rate back to late-2024 levels, at 7.0x fwd. P/E and 4.0x EV/EBITDA, as well as a 20% lower bottom-up target. In that case, we see a fair value of 152k points (10% downside).
